

#25 Bagging a Tiger

U.S.

Infantry prepare to ambush a German Tiger tank during the drive across France following the breakout from Normandy.

Following the D-Day landings, Allied troops (who had been primarily trained to assault the German-held beaches and needed to learn different strategies for the house-to-house and hedge row fighting that followed) fought a slow breakout fight across Normandy which finally ended with Operation Cobra that allowed the Allied forces to break out of Normandy and pursue the German forces across France until they were able to assume new defensive positions on the Rhine.