New, Deadlier Technology

The First World War saw great jumps in technology, and subsequently in casualties in the armed forces. For the first time armies were using machine guns, heavy artillery, airplanes and tanks. Here is an example of a French Renault FT tank being used by American forces to breach the German trenches.